

Roger Brunet

Sustainable Geography

London & Hoboken (NJ): Wiley-ISTE, 2011,
XXVI+396 p., 64 fig., 8 color-plates, hardback

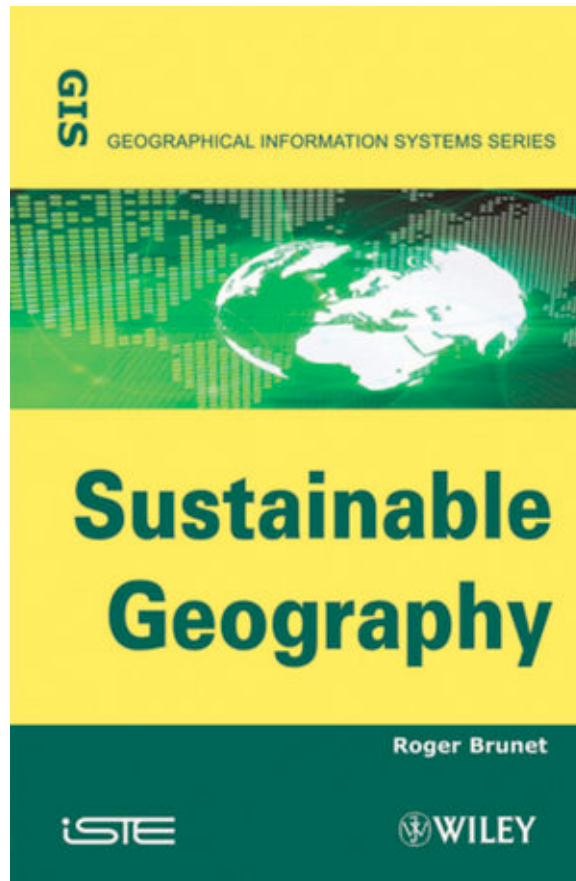

Table of contents

Presentation
Bibliography

Part 1

Geographical space production : systems and laws

(Introduction)

1. Geography : the hard core of a social science
2. The geon and the energy of the system
3. Geographical fields as the environment of places
4. Laws of geographical space production
5. Sense of distance

Part 2

Broken space

(Introduction)

1. Discontinuity and thresholds
2. Territorial retrenchments
3. Antiworld and alienation
4. Free zones in the international division of labour
5. Geography of the Gulag Archipelago
6. Geography of migrations, or the antiworld in space

Part 3

Models and chorematies

(Introduction)

1. Building models for spatial analysis
2. Model-maps and choremes
3. Models in geography? A sense to research
4. Mediterranean models
5. The Aquitaine region as a corner
6. Structural dynamic of the city of Tours (France)
7. Analysis and representation of spatial organizations : a few models

Part 4

Scales of globalization and moving Europe

(Introduction)

1. Ways, forms and figures of globalization
2. Aspects of globalization : the diamond revolution
3. European fields and mainlines
4. Transnational Urban Systems in Europe: Towards a New Modernity
5. Russia in revolutions

Part 5

Geography in the city : prospects

(Introduction)

1. Regaining reason
2. What is geography?
3. Geography in the public place
4. Geography and human rights
5. Dimensions of sustainable development

Conclusion: Along the way